GOULD'S ACADEMY

The Y. M. C. A. will hold its regular meeting at the close of school Thursday afternoon. Topic, Christmas Spirit. Leader, Edward Hanson.

Our basketball team journeyed to Rumford Friday night, where they met defeat at the hands of the strong Stephens High School team. Our boys made a very creditable showing, and although on a strange floor and outplayed, they did not lack in their determination to bring honor to the team and to the school. Captain Beckler was the individual star for Gould's on the offensive, while Wight was a tower of strength on the defensive. Voter of Rumford seemed to score at will, caging the ball for no less than a total of 26 points.

On Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 8, a motion picture, illustrating the manufacture of oleomargarine, was shown to the students of Gould's Academy under the direction of the Household Arts Department. Upon request the picture was very kindly loaned, free of charge, by the Armour's Beef Company. It showed the entire process of making their best grade of oleomargarine, namely the Triple XXX grade. The students were impressed by the purity of the product and the very great sanitary precautions used in its manufacture.

The basketball team is going through some intensive drilling this week in preparation for the Andover A. A. game to be played at the Academy Gymnasium on Friday night of this week. Last year Gould's won both games from Andover by a very narrow margin. The team says it can duplicate the feat this year, but Andover boasts of a stronger team this year than last, and says that they will not consider herself vanquished until the referee blows the final whistle. The Alumni girls will play the Academy girls the same night, thus giving two games at the usual admission. Everybody come and enjoy an evening of good clean sport.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

Events of Interest From Washington

By J. E. Jones
THE FALLACY OF PUBLIC MANAGEMENT

When the railroad problem under the Government management seemed to contain nothing but trouble, and promises of more trouble, a group of enthusiasts of government ownership tried to foist the notorious "Plumb plan" onto Congress. But Congress had been fed up on telegraph telephone and cable mismanagement under the Postmaster General, and railway operation under the Railway administration; and the legislative mill was speeded up to finish its grist of railway legislation, with the result that a concrete plan was devised, and this was known as the "transportation act."

If results count—and the American public is pretty apt to use results as a standard of measurement—then it is significant that under private management the official records show that the railroads have achieved the highest freight mileage in history during the past three months. When war conditions were being met and cars were supposed to be being packed to their roofs, the Railway Administration boasted of its progress. But the tons loaded per car during the past three months show that private management has again scored over public operation.

With practically the same equipment as the Government had, the private management of railroads has beaten every record made by the Railroad Administration. Despite the switchman's strike, the volume of freight traffic for the first seven months of 1920 exceeds the net tons carried one mile during a corresponding period in any of the past three years, including the period of Federal control.

LABOR SHOWS RECORD FOR EFFICIENCY

The fact that the railroads under private management have beaten all records under Federal control, when considering the volume of business turned over, is a victory that appears to belong largely to the employees of the road.

It seems only a few weeks ago, when the newspapers were filled with accounts of "decreased production," and the accounts told how, in case after case an equal number of employees on a certain piece of work, fell far short in the accomplishment of results after the war from what had been established as an average record before the war. We remember an instance where an exact calculation showed that under identical conditions in a certain shop the decrease in production was 40 per cent in 1919 than in 1917. Even so recently as last Spring the switchman's strike on the railroads was featured as one of the most disastrous of railroad strikes in their history.

But getting back to results, it is shown that the railroads have beaten all records in the handling of freight and passenger business during the past three months, and the accomplishments during the past three months, since all lines of the country have reached, show a record that the war emergency could not have produced. And since there are no longer any strikes on the railroads, it seems reasonable to suppose that laborers in other lines where the disputes between employers and employees have been smoothed out, are performing their part so returning the full volume of production to their employers.

In short railroad employees have disproved the charge that they are not rendering full service for the profit that has been submitted to show that the railroads have beaten all records, carries with it the further admission and proof that the thing would not have been possible at all, except for a degree of efficiency among the workmen equal if not greater than was obtained in previous days.

It is also equally clear that the shipper has given their full cooperation in carrying out the railroad program to speed up production. The result of it all is the clearing up of practically all freight congestion and the rendering of an added ability to the railroads to care for all demands upon them, including the handling of coal, grain, and the products of industries.

PERIOD OF WATCHFUL WAITING AT HAND

When one speaks of "watchful waiting" it usually suggests our relations with Mexico. It is correct that this policy is now in full effect, and Washington expects that the new turn of events to the Southwest will continue to show improvement.

But "watchful waiting" is given a new significance by the fact that the Wilson Administration will have much

FARMERS TO RECEIVE 10% FOR MILK IN DECEMBER

Farmers who supply the Boston milk market and other city markets in New England will continue to receive 10% cents per quart in December in spite of a determined effort on the part of Boston dealers to break the two months contract made at that price Nov. 1. The Sales Committee of the New England Milk Producers' Association stood firmly against the demands of the dealers and saved the farmers from a heavy loss on December milk.

The Sales Committee took the position that while there was an obvious downward trend in prices in many lines, the time had not come to reduce the milk price as the costs of production were not materially lower than last month. Studies made by the statistical department of the association showed that while grain has gone down materially at wholesale in the west the reduction has not reached the country retail trade in New England to any extent. The average reduction in grain prices in the country amounts to about $5 per ton. Taking into consideration all production costs the reduction for the month amounted to about one tenth of a cent per quart. The dealers asked for a reduction of a half cent. Before deciding to stand firm for carrying out the two months contract the Sales Committee of the association laid their figures before the Massachusetts Commission on the Necessaries of Life and received the assurance of the commission that it would take no action to disturb existing conditions.

The only concession made to the dealers was that farmers should stand loss on surplus during December. Under the contract entered into Nov. 1 for the two months the surplus deductions which were to be charged back to the farmers could not exceed one half cent a quart. November milk will be paid for on this basis but under the concession made by the Sales Committee the farmers will accept surplus deduction in full, just as they did in months previous to November.

TRUSTEES REMOVE DIRECTOR OF MAINE STATION

No One Appointed as His Successor

The Maine Agricultural Experiment Station is by Act of Legislature created as a Department of the University of Maine. Its governing board is the Trustees of the University. The heads of the Station Departments report to the Director. At the reorganization of the Station in 1919 the Trustees created a representative body to be called the Station Council for "the development and management of the Station."

By act of Legislature the Experiment Station was directed to conduct investigations into animal husbandry. The prime object was to try to learn how milk production and milk fat production could be increased. As one part of this work a herd made up of reciprocal crosses of high and low producing cows was developed. Such a herd was developed at the University in cooperation with the College of Agriculture. In November 1919 without consultation with the Station Council or the Station Council the Trustees ordered the investigation stopped and the animals making up the herd sold. In January 1920 after Station Council action a committee from that body waited upon the Trustees and presented a plan for continuing this investigation at Highmoor Farm. This plan was unanimously approved by the Trustees. Among the items approved and as taken from the Trustee records of that meeting is "The plan includes the use of certain barn space at the farm and the construction of an additional barn for housing, and water supply and equipment for caring for the animals and their products." Acting under this authority the Council Committee and the Station Director immediately took steps to put this action into effect. A barn was erected, the old barn remodeled, a well drilled and equipment purchased. The building of the barn was inspected in June when it was about half completed by a committee of the Trustees who were appointed by the Board with full authority relative to the new construction at Highmoor Farm. The committee from the Station Council met with the committee from the Trustees. Neither at that time nor at any time while the construction was in progress did the Trustees make any suggestion as to change or modification of the Trustees action of January 1920.

November 29 without previous notice the Director of the Station was requested by telephone to go to Bangor to meet the Board of Trustees. When he appeared he was told by the President of the Board that the Trustees unanimously demanded his immediate resignation. On asking why, the Director was informed that the Trustees had decided to remove him from office. The Director was then informed that the Trustees had decided to remove him from office. The Director was then informed that the Trustees had decided to remove him from office.

NEW GOVERNMENT SECURITIES TO BE OFFERED IN 1921

Two new United States Government securities are to be offered to the people of New England and the rest of the country in 1921, according to the Savings Division of the First Federal Reserve District. They will be a $1 Treasury Savings Stamp and a $25 Treasury Savings Certificate and will be put out in response to demands which have arisen for securities of these denominations particularly in the industries. This district now has more than 3000 War Savings Societies operating among its industries, with a membership of about 100,000 men and women, boys and girls, all saving systematically and voluntarily. There also are many of these societies under varying names, such as "Happy Jack" clubs, in the public, parochial and private schools, which represent a very large total saving through the purchase of the twenty five cent Thrift Stamps. The savings campaign has demonstrated that the workers like a $1 unit for saving and that they also will appreciate an opportunity to invest $25 in a certificate.

The head of Alexander Hamilton will adorn the new $1 Savings Stamp, which will be bright red imprinted on green tint. It is interesting to note that this will be the first time that the first Secretary of the United States has been fittingly honored by having his portrait on a Government savings security. The new $25 Savings Certificate will be similar in design and terms to those of the $100 and $1000 denominations, although different in color. Because of the foothold they have secured in the schools and homes of the nation as an easy means of saving with absolute safety, the twenty-five-cent Thrift Stamp and the $5 Savings Stamp are to be continued in 1921. The idea is not only to encourage saving but also to give every American youth or person of small means an opportunity of being an active partner in the United States Government. The Treasury officials felt this was a wise way of encouraging thrift and patriotism. Likewise the $100 and $1000 certificates will be continued, as they are well adapted for the investment of small trusts and surplus funds, not being subject to market changes and always collectable within a few days. They pay a fair rate of interest and nothing can be safer. Unions, fraternal and other organizations are employing these certificates for the investment of their funds but may hold only $1000 worth in any yearly series.

It is planned during the coming year to intensify the three functions of the Savings movement of the Treasury Department: The development and protection of the secondary market for all war issues of Government securities, the sale of Treasury savings securities and the making permanent of regular habits of saving and investment in United States Government securities. The Federation of Labor favors the movement and has requested the Treasury to continue to issue these savings securities as a safeguard to the savings of wage earners. The international unions have nearly all taken similar action since the Federation's convention. Not only have the unions invested their own treasury funds in these securities but they have urged similar action upon their members. They also have requested employers to offer opportunity for employees to purchase on part payment Liberty Bonds bought at current market prices and other Government securities. Many industrial concerns already have made such arrangements. Nearly every important fraternal organization in the country has endorsed the movement and invested a part of its funds in the Treasury securities, and individual lodges have taken similar action. As part of the Americanization work many people of foreign birth have been induced to invest in the securities, thus becoming "shareholders in the Government" and this result has been found to stimulate their interest. At present the Savings Division officials are being pledged full support from these leaders.

Officials of the Treasury Department at Washington say that national financial conditions have been benefited and countless thousands of people have become systematic savers through the work of the Savings Division in promoting thrift and savings in keeping war savings securities in the hands of investors and acquainting the people with the desirability of holding Liberty Bonds and buying more at the low prices in the market. It is interesting to note that the 1921 issue of the $5 Savings Stamp will be of larger size than this year's and will be orange in color, with the portrait head of Abraham Lincoln. The larger size is expected to be approved by the public and should make the "baby bonds" much more attractive artistically.

MOTHER WISDOM

Ill Health Spells Poverty and Misery: We Must Prevent It

Helen Johnson Keyes

Is there something mistaken about the methods we use in teaching our boys and girls health and hygiene? According to the statistics of forty-five states the subject must form part of the school curriculum, yet how little is really learned?

"The truth is, very few children will be kind to enthusiasm over such subjects as, 'how to be well,' 'what are germs?' 'clean milk,' or 'the unspeakable fly.' We must attack the subject in a different way if we want to get their interest.

Instead of lecturing to them on 'How to be Well,' why not show them that if they want to be good-looking, bright, and competent, they must have health; that health means popularity and power? Let them understand that fresh air is good for the complexion, that exercise gives strength and grace to the figure, that a good digestion means a clear skin, an agreeable disposition, and an active mind. After they have been made to feel that health is worth while, because it gives power, then we may tell them how air, exercise, and nutrition act on the body. We have related health and health habits to something which interests them.

Almost any person, particularly a young girl, will resent being told that she ought to take more baths in order to be cleaner, but if she is reminded that she will be prettier for frequent bathing and if the boy is told that he will play better ball for having frequent cold showers or plunges, they will feel that it is worth while to test the suggestion. The girl's mind will leap to dreams of influence and admiration, which every normal girl desires, the boy will see himself outstripping his mates in muscle and general capacity. And the dreams will come true: Cleanliness does produce beauty and strength and when our daughters and sons have learned that this is so, then it will be the moment to teach them why it is so, what the pores are and what they do.

Ill health spells poverty; if they want a bank account and the respect of the community, they must have the power which health confers. Why does the government, we might ask them, distribute free medicines and treatment to maintain health among animals. Because the sickness of animals means enormous loss of wealth to the nation. Loss of health among human beings means even greater loss of wealth to the nation and, in addition, great personal suffering and the humiliation of families. The reason why the government has not enforced health among them as it has among brutes is because they are self-governing creatures and are supposed to keep themselves well without government intervention.

The following very suggestive table, computed carefully by men who have studied the facts, gives in dollars the value to his country of an individual according to his age: 0-5, $1,500; 5-10, $2,300; 10-15, $2,500; 15-20, $3,000; 20-25, $5,000; 25-30, $7,500; 30-35, $7,000; 35-40, $6,000; 40-45, $5,500; 45-50, $5,000; 50-55, $4,500; 55-60, $4,000; 60-65, $3,000; 65-70, $1,000; 70+, $1,000.

If a club of young people were given the task of collecting the statistics of deaths from preventable diseases in the district or county during a year and then of multiplying each age-group by the number of deaths which have occurred within it, those young people would have a new appreciation of the commercial value of health, their own importance and the importance of their neighbors to national prosperity. Health would assume a totally new significance.

A school club whose members were not the task of collecting certain health statistics among the pupils, reporting, perhaps, to a physician, would learn more about health and hygiene in one term than text books could teach them in several terms, because they would perceive the relation between well-being and success.

Suppose the club made a school census of the following facts:

(1) Children who breathe through their mouths; (2) Children whose appearance, habits, and way of reading indicate defect in eyesight; (3) Children whose ears run and whose reply to questions indicate faulty hearing; (4) Children suffering from constant toothache and indigestion; (5) Children abnormally restless, nervous and unruly.

Suppose a table of comparative marks were made out between these and the roughly normal children, would not the result be a new respect for health and a new idea of the importance of it in relation to study and attainments in later life?

An honor roll should be formed within this club of children who slept with open windows, brushed their teeth twice a day, took baths at least twice a week, ate less than a certain amount of candy and drank a certain amount of milk.

With this school spirit thus aroused, the homes and the community could scarcely escape the contagion of enthusiasm. The application of cleanliness to the dairy, to the stable, to refuse, would become necessary as matters of social decency and public opinion. Pro-formed that by building the barn at Highmoor Farm he had exceeded his authority. The Director denied that he had exceeded authority and cited the paragraph from the Trustees records above quoted. He refused to resign. At about 10 o'clock the morning of November 30 he received a notice signed by the Clerk of the Board of Trustees notifying him that the Trustees had removed him from being Director, the removal to be effective December 1. The Director spent the remainder of the 30th putting Station matters in the best shape possible for leaving in the limited time. As the Trustees had delegated no one to take his place and as they had ignored the President of the University in the matter by sending the communication of removal direct to the Director, the Director suggested to the heads of the Station that they should continue to act automatically in Station management as they would were the Director temporarily absent. And there the matter now rests.

The writer wishes to express his deep appreciation of the work of the press of the State, and particularly the large dailies who have featured these Publicity Letters, of the great service they have rendered both the Station and the State. The Maine Station in its 35 years of existence has through its discoveries added many millions to the wealth of the State. It is the only research agency the State has for discovering the laws underlying successful agriculture. Research is slow painstaking work. The research worker must be kept from harrowing concern. For it is only by concentration on his project that success can be had. This action of the Trustees has fundamentally disturbed the confidence of the research man. He argues if the Director after a quarter of a century of faithful work is dismissed without adequate reason, where does he stand, what hope has he of being able to complete a study that must extend over long periods of time. At no time in the history of the Station does it so need the steady hands of friends of agriculture. The last request of the removed Director is to the friends of agriculture, and he is happy and proud to know they are for the most part his personal friends as well, to come to the support of the Station. It has been receiving $15,000 a year from the State for its support. To tide it over until increased Federal appropriations which are being asked for in a nation-wide movement are available, this amount must be increased to $25,000 a year. Otherwise it will not be possible for anyone to hold the present very efficient organization together. Help will come from the outside eventually but for this help to be efficient the agriculture of the State must see to it that the Legislature makes provision for its immediate support.

ple would demand these things of their neighbors, seeing the importance of them to their own survival in healthy prosperity. Health would be associated in the minds of the community with power and success, ill health with dirt, failure, poverty and social disaster.

To the hard hearted, dirt, failure and poverty might remain just repulsive or ridiculous but to the finer-spirited they would be so pitiful as to call for assistance and so, through sympathy, this element in the community would gradually be relieved and done away with. Germs would be starved because no filth would remain for them to feed upon—neither the filth of decaying teeth nor that of milk from dirty stables. Contagious diseases would be isolated, so that the loss to the community from illness should be as small as possible.

This method takes into account the way our minds are made, requiring to see the relation of what we learn to the way we live before the lesson becomes interesting or seizes our attention. If mothers can succeed in making sanitation, cleanliness and health, interesting to our children, they will certainly fall into line.

CURED HIS RHEUMATISM!

"I am eighty-three years old and I suffered for rheumatism ever since I came out of the army, over fifty years ago. Like many others, I spent money freely for so-called 'cures' and I have read about 'Uris Acid' until I could almost taste it. I could not sleep nights or walk without pain. My hands were so sore and stiff I could not hold a pen. But now I am again in active business and can walk with ease or write all day with comfort. Friends are surprised at the change." You might just as well attempt to put out a fire with oil. Try to get rid of your rheumatism, neuritis and the complaints by taking treatment supposed to drive 'Uris Acid' out of your blood and body. It took Mr. Aschman fifty years to find out the truth. He learned how to get rid of the true cause of his rheumatism, other disorders, and recover his strength from "The Inner Mysteries," now being distributed free by an authority who devoted over twenty years to the scientific study of this trouble. If any reader of this paper wants "The Inner Mysteries of Rheumatism" overlooked by doctors and scientists for centuries past, simply send a post card or letter to H. P. Cleveland, 2614 1/2 Street, Hallowell, Maine. Send now, lest you forget! If not a member yourself, cut out this notice and send this good news and opportunity to some afflicted friend. All who send will receive it by return mail without any charge whatever.

Sixteen ladies appeared at her home, laden with good things for the table and a merry party sat down at the noon hour to a feast of chicken, chicken pie and all the "fixins," with all kinds of pastry. In the afternoon many called to extend congratulations and letters and post cards brought good wishes from many friends. She was the recipient of several nice gifts. Mrs. Eastman was born in Canton, the daughter of the late Farnum Austin and Adrian A. Austin. In her younger days she was a successful school teacher, teaching in Canton, Livermore and Dixfield. She is vice chairman of the local Red Cross Branch and has the honor of wearing a service badge. She is also a member of the Ladies' Aid and the Universal Circle. Mrs. Eastman is not one to be "laid on the shelf," and no number of these organizations is complete without her aid or counsel. Her willing hands are ever ready for service, while her enthusiasm and cheerfulness is an asset to the community at large. She is at the present time soliciting for memberships for the Fourth

NO PRE-WAGES OR PRICES IN SIGHT

So Says Mr. William M. Wood, the President of the American Woolen Company, Speaking of the Textile Industries—But There Will Be a Considerable Reduction in Living Costs—A General Readjustment Inevitable

There is probably no business man of this country today whose opinions on industrial and economic problems carry greater weight, or are accepted with greater respect, than those of Mr. William M. Wood, President of the American Woolen Company. He is a man who never speaks at random, or talks for the mere sake of talking. Everything he gives out, whether in a speech or an interview, is the result of profound thought, and is based upon a careful study of all the facts and figures pertaining to the matter in hand.

For these reasons it is proper to give the widest publicity to what Mr. Wood has been saying about the prospects which lie before the textile industries, as follows:—

"With prospective tariffs and taxes, we can certainly not go back to pre-war prices. Neither can labor go back to pre-war wages. Therefore, neither wool nor woolen cloth should sell at pre-war prices. The woolen weavers and garment makers were underpaid before the war. Their wages should never go back to pre-war prices."

"There must be general readjustment all along the line. During the war some people were very much overpaid and some people were underpaid when their wages were compared with the war prices. Many clerks, teachers, preachers, salaried men and many men in established trades felt the pinch of high living prices during the war as their incomes were more or less fixed. Such people would benefit by the reduction in the cost of living which is gradually permeating through from wholesale to retail channels. It will take some weeks yet to get the reduction in wholesale prices effective in retail prices, but it is coming. Meanwhile there are many people who were not advanced in wages during the war so early as were shipbuilders, machinists, metal workers and those producing material demanded quickly in war-time."

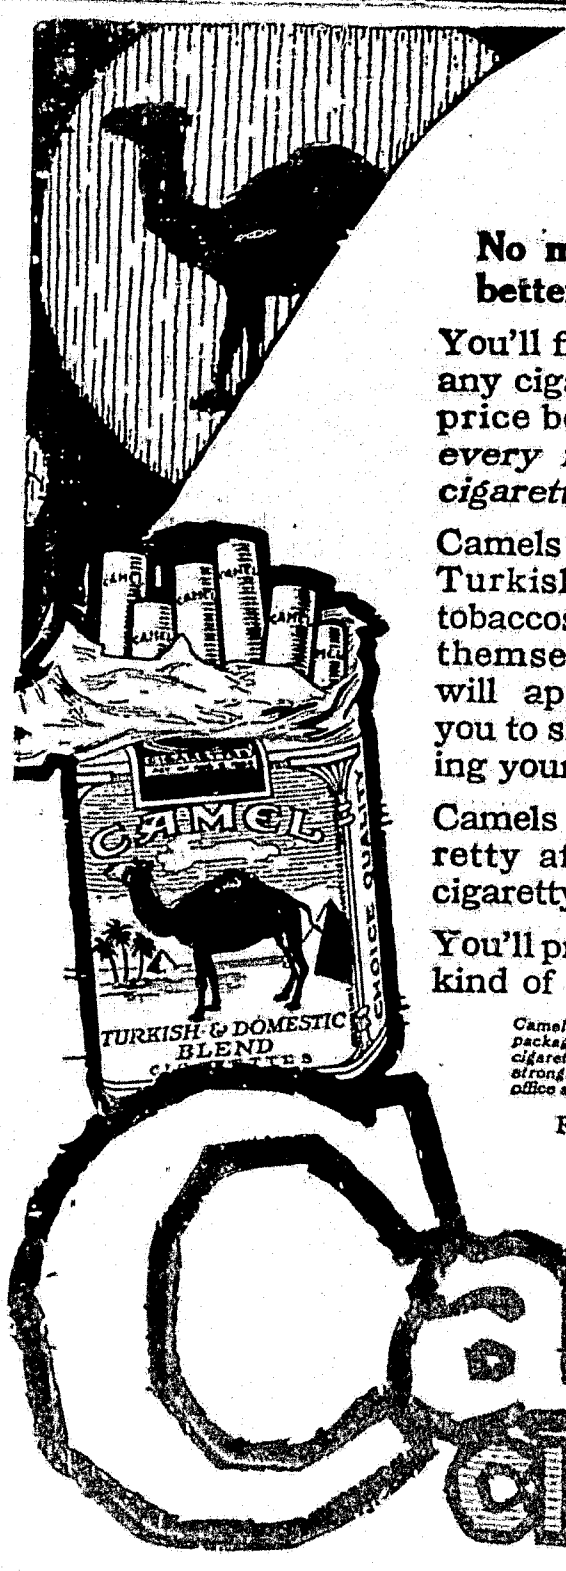

"The people who did not get their wages raised or considered until late in the struggle now naturally feel aggrieved and would like to see adjustment of their wages to war prices. I believe they should be sympathized with and dealt with rather gently but that their full demands should not be granted. If they are reasoned with, with statistics showing the fall in the prices of corn, wheat, flour, pork, beef, wool and cotton at wholesale, and shown that such prices must, in a short time have their effect in the retail field, employees will be reasonable. They can be shown that high or arbitrary wages will mean, in the end, unemployment for a great many, while, with reasonable wages there will be a safer, saner and sounder basis and employment for many more."

"You know the situation with the garment makers in New York City, where most of them are out of employment after demanding higher wages than the highest ever received. The trouble was not with the employers. The trouble was that the public would not pay the price either for boots and shoes or silk goods or garments. In other words, the public has rebelled against the high cost of living and that rebellion forces unemployment until the situation is adjusted to the satisfaction of the public."

"If you will take up the New York newspapers you will see Wanamaker and other department stores and clothing manufacturers advertising many goods at 25% and 50% reductions. Hides are now down to a pre-war basis, but shoes are not yet down. In the end they will come down to a proper relation to the prices of hides."

"We must all be guided by general principles. These are no different in textiles than in boots and shoes. Our mills manufacture cloth which is whole-saled to manufacturers of clothing, but the cloth is not purchased by the public. If the public should purchase cloth and manufacture its suits with home labor as in olden times, you would see a very different state of affairs. The price of cloth has been reduced from 20% to 25%, but as the price of manufacturing the cloth into garments has not yet come down, the public has not yet received the benefit of our reduction in cloth. In my judgment it will receive it in time. We have been on a war basis and it ought to be clear to anybody that eventually there will be a permanent reduction in the cost of clothing."

"I feel that we have reduced cloth from a war-time basis to levels that ought to be permanent, but if manufacturers do not buy the goods and mills continue to close down, it is only a question of time when there will be a famine in cloth and some people will pay higher prices for immediate delivery. But that will be only temporary. Viewed in a large way, there must be considerable permanent reduction in the cost of clothing from war prices. Raw materials are down as far as they ought to go.

Pre-war prices can never be expected so clearly and so conclusively. Commercial and Financial World.

A BETHEL MAN'S EXPERIENCE

Can you doubt the evidence of this Bethel citizen?

You can verify Bethel endorsement. Read this:

F. B. Merrill, Main St., Bethel, says: "Whenever my kidneys get sluggish in action or my back gets to hurting, I resort to Doan's Kidney Pills, which I get at Bosserman's Drug Store. They never fail to bring relief. I have been following the lumbering business for years and exposure and taking cold is what I blame for my kidney trouble. I had backache so bad I couldn't do a tap of work. The pains across my back and kidneys completely put me past going and my kidneys didn't act regularly at times, either. The secretions passed too often, then again, were scanty and painful. I couldn't rest at night. After I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills, however, relief followed and Doan's never fail me now."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Merrill had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.—ad

The stores are being put in readiness for the holiday business.

The annual Christmas festival will be held at the Baptist church on Christmas eve.

WHEN times grow dull, do you give up your electric service?

Few do.

That is one reason why a power company's dividends go steadily on, in good times or bad.

Deflation finds the power company in a healthy state. It has no inflated prices to cut, no inflated inventories to mark down. Its cost of doing business grows steadily less as deflation makes progress.

No matter how far deflation goes, the power company should steadily continue to pay dividends.

This strong likelihood of dividends paid regularly for all time, is doubtless one of the many reasons why the demand for Central Maine Power Company 7% Preferred Stock continues to be brisk.

It sells for $107.50 a share, to yield 6½% net—a high yield considering how excellent are the chances that you will always get it.

CARVER'S

NATIONAL CAPITAL

In proposals during the coming three months while Congress will pursue the policy of "watchful waiting" or "nothing doing" until the Harding administration goes into effect.

This same condition followed the defeat of former President Taft eight years ago, when Congress sewed all his plans and suggestions into a political bag, which they put in storage until after he had taken the train out of Washington.

APPOINTMENTS LIKELY TO BE HELD UP

A large number of Presidential appointments including those of the members of the shipping board, will be sent to Congress by President Wilson. While there is no concerted opposition to allowing Mr. Wilson to make his selections in the line of his public duty, it is noticeable that some Senators appear to look like a black cloud in the pathway to obstruct each suggestion that has the executive approval. And while it may be possible for the President to get some of his appointments confirmed, the chances are that there will be no end of reasons advanced by different Senators against the nominations. This will result in holding up confirmation till March 4, after which Republicans will have the Administration in their own hands.

LAWMAKERS RETURNING TO WASHINGTON

Business is again quite brisk in the Senate and House Office Buildings, and everything in Washington indicates the usual activity preceding the opening of a session of Congress. The President, we are told, has determined the nature of his message, and there is a faint expectancy that he may deliver it in person. However, those who know most about the physical condition of Mr. Wilson do not believe that he will be able to read the message before a joint session.

FREEDOM OF THE PHILIPPINES

While mammoth parades and great mass meetings have been carried on in Washington for the Irish, the Filipinos, who have had promises galore from our great political parties and leaders, seem to be making but slow progress in their efforts to secure self government. However, an effective organization is maintained in Washington by the Filipinos, and the representatives of the islands promise to carry their cause before Congress with vigor, this winter.

BATES COLLEGE NEWS

With the addition of Harvard to their schedule the Bates debating teams will have a deal harder job on their hands than they ever before faced. Harvard is due to arrive in Lewiston to do battle Saturday evening, Jan. 15, at the same time that she meets Syracuse at Cambridge with the same question. Bates is to meet this year all the "big three"—Harvard, Yale and Princeton—for years the debating aristocrats of the east.

Now that the football season is over, basketball is coming to the fore in intercollegiate athletic circles. Bates and the University of Maine are the only colleges of the State to compete, although Colby is unofficially represented by a fast bunch, playing semi pro teams.

Bates stars her season with Portland A. C. at City Hall, Lewiston, Dec. 18; Oswald Tower, editor of one of the standard rule books, and an authority on basketball, has been secured as referee. Other teams to be met include those from Northeastern College of Boston, U. of M., Boston College, New Hampshire State, Harvard, with games pending with M. A. C., Worcester Polytech and Tufts.

The interclass series, concluded last Saturday, disclosed much excellent material, the freshman class especially having a fast, heady team, which had little difficulty in clinching the intramural championship, by winning five out of six games played.

An interesting address was recently given to an open meeting of the Politics Club by Baron S. A. Korff, formerly governor-general of Finland under the Kerensky regime in Russia. He feels certain that the present soviet government is of short duration, and that it is only a matter of time before the Russian people will get a democratic form of government, "which the majority so much desire." He classed Lenin as a "difficult fanatic," most sincerely devoted to his cause; aware that his ideas of soviet government have failed in Russia, but "looking for a world revolution to save his Utopia." Trotsky, on the other hand, is "selfish and businesslike. He never was a Bolshevik up to 1917—Lenin simply uses him as a convenient tool."

Ernestine Philbrook is to have one of the chief parts in a short play, "The Kieptomskiae," to be given in Chase Hall this week under the auspices of Seniority, a club of which she is a member.

Thomas F. Kelley, 22, of Gardiner, was elected football captain for the 1921 season at a meeting of varsity men last Friday. Kelley was the best ground-gainer on the team this year, besides being a good man on defense. He has been playing regularly at halfback this season, although he does no mean trick at quarter.
